DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on 3/17/2003 is acknowledged and has been considered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.
- 3. Claims 1, and 3 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Ballantyne, U.S. Patent 6,687,873.

In regard to claim 1:

"identifying a union of the interfaces to a subset of the solutions;

creating a generic description of that subset in a using a common descriptive metalanguage;

creating solution-specific code to translate the operations and data of each interface between the each solution and the generic description."

Application/Control Number: 09/997,942

Art Unit: 2124

Ballantyne discloses identifying a union of interfaces to a subset of solutions (column 10, lines 4 – 9; Figures 6 and 6a); creating a generic description of the solution subset using XML, and creating solution-specific code to translate each solution (column 6, line 48 to column 7, line 23)

In regard to claim 3, incorporating the rejection of claim 2:

"...wherein the method further comprises a connector creation tool."

Ballantyne discloses the code generation system (14) of Figures 1 and 2 to create solution-specific code (connector creation tool) that connects the solution to the output of the XML data (column 7, lines 25 – 52).

In regard to claim 4, incorporating the rejection of claim 3:

"...wherein the method further comprises a client code generation tool."

See Ballantyne Figure 1 (ref 14).

In regard to claim 5, incorporating the rejection of claim 4:

"...wherein the method further comprises an online integration analysis."

See Ballantyne column 7, line 53 to column 8, line 45 and Figure 3.

In regard to claim 6, incorporating the rejection of claim 5:

"...wherein the method further comprises an integration knowledge management architecture."

See Ballantyne Figures 1 and 6.

In regard to claim 7, incorporating the rejection of claim 6:

"...wherein the method further comprises an interaction portal."

See Ballantyne Figure 6 and 6a.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 5. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ballantyne, U.S. Patent 6,687,873 in view of Call, U.S. Patent 6,418,441.

In regard to claim 2, incorporating the rejection of claim 1:

"...wherein the method further comprises a digital signature for custom connector modules."

Ballantyne creates a generic description of the solution subset using XML, and creating solution-specific code to translate each solution (column 6, line 48 to column 7, line 23) and at least suggests that the legacy system involved is accessed over the Internet (column 1, lines 34 - 42), but does not explicitly disclose the use of a digital signature for the connector modules. However, Call discloses the use of a digital signature providing server access to authorized requestors (column 6, lines 43 - 55). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the accessing of a legacy system having a subset of solutions via the Internet as taught by Ballantyne with the digital signature that is taught by Call to ensure that only authorized requestors to a server have access, because one would expect that a business system having access to solutions over the Internet would need to limit access to only authorized users as taught by Call at column 6, lines 52 – 55.

Conclusion

- 6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:
- U.S. Patent 6,771,290 to Hoyl, regarding an interface for accessing resources over the Internet.
- U.S. Patent 6,785,882 to Goiffon et al., regarding a tool interface for an object management system.
